Julia in cancer doc lift

COUNTRYFILE favourite Julia Bradbury is “proud” her TV documentary about her breast cancer battle has helped thousands of other sufferers.

The charity Breast Cancer Now Helpline has witnessed a 21% increase in callers within weeks of her show airing.

And donations, which are expected to reach £10,000, have poured in since the broadcast.

Julia, 51, said: “I’m proud of the film. I know it has helped other people on their own breast cancer journeys.

“I’m delighted the documentary has prompted more people to seek information and support from Breast Cancer Now and that it moved people to set up regular donations to the charity.”
